GIVING FAMILIES KNOWLEDGE, SKILLS AND HOPE

On June 15, 2017, more than 30 families celebrated as they walked down the aisle to receive their diploma from the School of Agriculture for Family Independence (SAFI). Graduates, children and guests began dancing together, celebrating this great achievement and future success of the graduates.

Those attending the ceremony said one of the best parts of watching the graduates was the hope you can see in their eyes. “It’s inspiring to hear the stories of the families before they came to SAFI and see where they are after graduation,” said Paige Riffle, Team Elite for the Americas. “Many of them didn’t have enough food to feed their children. Now families know how to increase their harvests and have a brighter future.”

The skills learned over the course of two years have an immediate impact in the lives of the graduates and those in their village. For the past 10 years, the SAFI program has been helping families learn important agricultural techniques that are helping increase year-round crop yield, with many families having a surplus of food that they share with neighbors or sell to pay for their children to go to school.

TAPPING INTO WATER FOR FAMILIES

According to the 2015 Malawi Demographic and Health Survey, nearly 50% of Malawian households travel more than 30 minutes to reach the nearest water source and often must wait for their turn to draw water. Nu Skin sales leaders in South Korea saw the problem and quickly went to action to drill boreholes (waterholes) that were fitted with manually operated pumps.

During the past 12 months, 11 boreholes with pumps have been installed, providing more than 5,000 households access to an improved water source and sanitation. It also improves the health of children and reduces absenteeism for school age-children.

BIG DREAMS FOR EMMA

Emma is eight years old and shares a small house with her parents, two siblings and grandmother in El Salvador. Recently, times have been tough. Her father has struggled to find permanent work and couldn't always provide enough food, so Emma and her family would often go hungry.

Recently, Emma was enrolled into the Children's Feeding Initiative, a program provided by Convoy of Hope, one of Nourish the Children's charity partners. Emma now receives VitaMeal during school, which has drastically changed her life. Not only does VitaMeal fill her stomach, but it alleviates some of the financial stress on her family.

Emma has big dreams for the future. "I want to be a nurse so I can help other people," she says. Because of the kindness of VitaMeal donors, Emma can dream of her future with hope that she can make it happen.

Nu Skin is a for-profit distributor of nutritional and skin care products and is traded on the New York Stock Exchange (NUS). Nourish the Children is an initiative of Nu Skin and is registered in some states as a commercial co-venture. The initiative enables Nu Skin's distributors and customers to purchase VitaMeal from Nu Skin and donate it to charitable organizations to help solve the complex world problem of feeding malnourished children. The price of VitaMeal includes the cost of manufacturing, general overhead, distribution and sales. As is the case with other Nu Skin products, distributors are paid commissions and Nu Skin earns a profit margin from each sale of VitaMeal, which is lower than the profit margin on virtually all of Nu Skin's other products.
